Tas Hull Daily News, of England,
says of the Gorman Tariff:

"The advantage to England from the new Tariff will be felt principally in the manufacturing centers such as Bradford, Huddersfield and the neighborhood, where the McKinley Tariff wrought so much harm. We may expect in Hull to gain something from increased shipments of goods, and so far as we can judge we shall not have long to wait."

EXPORTS of merchandise from the United States during September, 1894, were $49,088,863, against $72,095,788 for September, 1893. Imports for the month were $50,859,510 for 1894 and $63,320,612 for 1893. It figures like these that prove the Republican battle-cry that a Protective Tariff is the best policy for the United States. Under the McKinley Law, in September, 1894, we shipped to "the markets of the world" $72,095,788 worth of American merchandise, while in the same month of 1893, under the new Democratic "Free-trade" Tariff, we shipped only $50,859,510—a loss of $12,827,325 in a single month.

such exports are not likely to continue there is every evidence that other exports will follow in rapid succession, and that by election time the gold reserve will have fallen lower than at any time in the present administration of affairs.

The withdrawal of gold is not the only thing that makes the situation look unfavorable from a financial standpoint. The statement of the Treasury's condition is not satisfactory. It appears that for the month of September the exports this year were $13,000,000 less than they were in 1893, and the imports a little more than $4,000,000 larger. At that ratio the exports for the year would fall by $156,000,000 and the imports increase $48,000,000 each million of imports taking that much from the American laborer. It is also interesting to note that for this September the excess of exports over imports was but $4,500,000 for the same month last year. That is not favorable. The excess of imports of gold over exports was but about $50,000 as compared to $50,000 for the same period last year, while for the nine months of this year the excess of exports of gold over imports has been $73,000,000, and for the same period last year it was but $10,317,885, and that was considerably very unfavorable.

Bret's MARSH will find much food for reflection in the foregoing figures.

IN 1892 WILLIAM L. WILSON was elected to Congress from the Second West Virginia District by a majority of 1,061 in a total poll of 42,563. From 1890 to 1892 the Republican vote in the District increased 2,838, the Democratic vote 1,872—a Republican gain of 1,000 in a year that was decidedly an off year for Republicans in the country over. This year a change of 526 votes would defeat Mr. Wilson. This would require an average change of 35 votes to a county, or 5 votes to every 400 of the District over on the vote of 1892. With the dissatisfaction in the District and a Republican brighter on Mr. Wilson's track, the fight is one of very decided interest.

IN 1890, after fourteen years of Free-trade, there were 1,312,000 workmen employed in our manufacturing industries. In 1870 they had increased to 2,054,000, a gain of 74,000 a year. In 1880 they numbered 2,740,000, or an increase of 50,000 a year. In 1890 there were 4,712,000 hands employed, an increase of 190,000 a year, and in 1892 there were over 5,300,000 hands at work, a further increase of over 300,000 a year under Protection. In 1890 these workers received $350,000,000 in wages, or $25 per hand. In 1892 the pay roll amounted to $2,232,000,000, equal to $45 for every man, woman and child so employed. In 1890 the wage earners of the country, under Protection, had nearly two billion dollars a year more money to spend than in 1890 under Free-trade. This was good for business, for manufacturers, merchants and storekeepers.

Brown's Iron Bitters

In a unsolicited letter (June 29, 1894) she writes:

"About 9 or 10 years ago I was broken down in health and suffered from extreme nervousness, and the neuralgia pains afflicted different parts of my body—soreness and dreadful pain would be in my eye ball, head, sometimes in my hand and often in my shoulders and neck. I took many remedies, but nothing like Brown's Iron Bitters. I have used a few bottles every year since. I often praise it to others."
